14: Tamai--97[16] J-2 (1896) 1896 Formosan Aborigines
116, 361, 487, 505 Chin-hoan

The Tschinwans of Maraisha inhabit a strategically favorable position; it is difficult to approach their villages from any side. The Japanese expeditionary forces found no suitable roads; what the Tschinwans consider a road to us is barely a path.

Since the mountains are steep and rocky it is difficult to build roads. The best method of transportation is to make use of the rivers.